

Legal Series: Value Drivers Diagnostic Presented by Minor & Brown PC

Join us as Jim Thomas, Director/Shareholder/Attorney at Minor & Brown PC discusses small business value and answers your questions on how to determine the value of your organization.

Topics covered in this workshop will include:

- Common factors that drive value to your company
- What detracts from or depresses the value of your business
- Steps to increase and protect your company's value
- Understand what you and your business look like from the standpoint of a prospective buyer

About the Speaker:

Known for dedication to his clients, passion for his community and prowess with a kazoo, Jim Thomas takes pride in a balanced perspective that keeps work enjoyable and business and community sustainable. From untangling day-to-day issues that can confound businesses, to realizing long term strategies in the purchase or sale of a business or real estate, Jim strives to be more than just a great legal advisor to his clients. Manufacturers, distributors, construction companies, publishers, service companies, real estate investors, and even other law firms are among those that count on Jim's expertise, integrity, responsiveness and sense of humor to help them advance their goals.

Jim is very active in the community, investing his time, money and passion in a vibrant future for Colorado. Jim combines law, business and community in two blogs that he maintains: No Funny Lawyers, his "human view of law for human-owned businesses" and for The Huffington Post. Denver Business Advisors, a pro bono business advisory service for small and emerging businesses that Jim founded, is another example of his creative responses to community needs.
